What does The Clarius Group do with your personal information?

Financial companies choose how they share your personal information. Federal law gives consumers the right to limit some, but not all, sharing. Federal law also requires us to tell you how we collect, share, and protect your personal information. All financial companies need to share clients' personal information to run their everyday business. Please read this notice carefully to understand what we do.

The types of personal information we collect and share depend on the services we provide you. This information can include:

- Social Security number and income
- Risk tolerance and investment experience
- Account balances and transaction history

When you are no longer our client, we continue to share your information as described in this notice.

How does The Clarius Group protect your personal information?

To protect your personal information from unauthorized access and use, we use physical, electronic, and procedural safeguards that comply with applicable regulatory standards. These measures include computer safeguards, such as requiring a VPN connection and dual-factor authentication to access the data; and secured files and office locations. We also restrict access to your personal information to those individuals who need to know the information to provide services and/or products to you.

How does The Clarius Group collect your personal information?

We collect your personal information, for example, when you:

- Open an account or deposit money
- Seek advice about your investments or enter into an investment advisory contract
- Tell us about your investment portfolio

We also collect your personal information from other companies.
